Joined on Patrol

Recently Kim was joined for a day on the south patrol by Dan Shephard, pastor of Crossroads Presbyterian Church in Hobart. Two other pastors will also be joining Kim over the coming weeks.

It is encouraging to have the support of the Presbyterian churches across the whole State and to witness the sense of family and team work in sharing the Good News message in city and country.

"I joined Kim for a day of patrol work. Even though I've lived in Tasmania for years that day I travelled roads and visited places I never knew existed. This is where Kim does his valuable ministry; meeting people in the area, talking to those struggling with relationships or having problems on their land. Ultimately however, Kim aims to share the gospel, see people become Christians (by God's grace) and disciple Christians. When I got home I looked at a map of Tasmania and sincerely thanked God for the work he's doing."

FINANCIAL SUPPORT

Generous churches and individuals make the work of PIM possible. There is considerable cost to keep a patrol padre on the road. The Tasmania Patrol is seeking financial supporters who wish to partner with Kim in taking Christian care and the message of Jesus to fellow Aussies who live in the bush.

Regular monthly support or one off gifts for the Tasmania Patrol can be made by visiting the PIM website and going to the Tasmania Patrol page. Or alternatively contact Kim by phone or email. (If you choose to give via the website, please send Kim an email so he can acknowledge your partnership in this vital ministry). Thanks so much to those already giving!

Faithfulness Sees Results

Once or twice monthly Kim conducts services in Stanley. He is currently preaching from Luke's Gospel. A recent communion service was held at Kirklands in the rural area near Campbell Town; the message discussing our possible response to Jesus.

On patrol, Kim is finding that relationships develop and opportunities arise over time. Boundaries are crossed and trust is built through faithful visitation. Christian witness in the Tasmanian bush is about showing interest and care over the long haul.

A 'religious' family recently confirmed their belief in the Gospel as contained in the 'Sinners Prayer'. A new Bible Study with two Christians has commenced. A possible marriage course is being negotiated. Self confessed non believers are pleased to have the Christian padre regularly visit their home.

These 'results' are seen over time. Thanks for sticking with Kim for the long haul through prayer and financial support.
